

A Word...

We have seen great success with our on-farm trials, working with Simon Cameron of Kingston Farms whose premium Marino wool is used by MJ Bale and Richard Gardner whose 1,300 strong dairy herd supply Fonterra Australia.

Sea Forest's world-leading Asparagopsis feed supplement is the key to achieving our mission:

Fight Climate Change and Generate More Food with Fewer Resources

Sea Forest is not only the first company in the world to cultivate Asparagopsis at a commercial scale, but we are also pioneering a new and environmentally positive aquaculture industry in Tasmania that forms part of a $16 billion dollar global seaweed industry.

The exciting news doesn't stop there. In February we were extremely fortunate to be awarded a $1 million grant under the Federal Government's Entrepreneurs Programme. Acknowledgment at a Federal level is encouraging and the funding will assist in the establishment of our marine farm in Tasmania.

Overall, we have been very lucky and grateful for the support from you, the media, the Australian Federal Government, our company partners, and everyone else who has backed Sea Forest during the initial stages of the business.

We're excited to soon deploy this supplement as a livestock feed product for all farmers in Australia and to help them join the solution to reducing emissions. Until the next update, we promise to keep you, our new Sea Forest community, informed on the latest this year, whilst we continue to spearhead a new industry for Australia.

Ensure to stay connected with us on our social media channels and follow our news page for the latest.

Sam Elsom,
CEO

